

Vanguard Media Group is a marketing communications firm with one key distinction from other marketing firms. We are committed to developing communications that change the world around us – that make our communities better places to live. We strive to recruit people who believe in this mission. We strive to work with clients who share our goals. And we strive to make a difference.

What does this mean on a day-to-day basis? Our firm seeks out clients and projects that help to improve our community. This may take many forms, whether providing Krispy Kreme Doughnuts with public relations and marketing services that allow schools to raise funds for their ongoing operations, or developing health prevention and promotion campaigns for health departments across the nation. From creating and launching the brand of an $800 million cancer center in Utah, to successfully developing job-promotion activities for the State of Nevada, one of the fastest growing job markets in the nation.
